

School officials 'appalled' at millage defeat

By KIM KOESTER
ANP Special Writer

School officials are appalled by the decision of voters to reject the district millage proposals again, but they remain hopeful that the fourth time will be a charm.

This is the third time the proposals have failed.

Bedell called the defeat "dumb" and said (school officials) would start planning again. They will put the matter before the people again.

Superintendent Dr. William Bedell said "I've done better" when confronted the next morning with the third defeat of the proposed millage for Romulus Schools.

A proposal to transfer 4.5 mills from the school debt fund to the general fund for one year, was defeated 827 to 588. A proposal to transfer 2 mills from the debt fund to the general fund starting in the 1989-90 school year, was defeated 829 to 558.

"I was really astounded at the defeat," Bedell said. "I thought more people would vote."

School officials will put the matter before the people again. Bedell called the defeat "dumb" and said they would start planning again. If the millages are not passed to provide the money the district needs to balance its budget, school officials will be required by the state to start making cuts in services and curriculum in January.

"There will be a much more aggressive campaign in the fall," said Joel Carr, assistant superintendent for finance.

"The millage is very important to continuing school operation."

$600,000 was lost last year in 'leaky' city water supply

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

A study in Romulus has revealed that 32 percent of water purchased for the city from the Detroit Water Supply System was lost during the 1987 calendar year. City officials this month are trying to determine where the lost water is going.

Mayor Beverly McAnally said the city will be taking steps to correct the water supply problem in Romulus. She cited problems discovered by the Water Supply and Sewage Disposal Systems, in a 33-page report.

"Some place, we are losing water, whether it's from illegal taps or what. But we are losing it some place," McAnally said.

The city purchases clean water from the city of Detroit Water Supply System. The water is sold to customers by distribution mains owned by the city and maintained by the Romulus Department of Public Works.

Currently, there are 7,394 Romulus water-users. Residential customers total 6,323, 1,071 are commercial users.

Sixty-one customers are unaccounted for because they use water wells.

In the city sewer system, there are 6,807 users - 5,736 are residential, 1,071 are commercial, and 648 use septic tanks.

The loss of water cost the city an estimated $600,000 per year through sewage and water, city officials said.

In 1987, 255 million cubic feet of water was purchased from the city of Detroit. The cost was $763,000. In the same year, 173 million cubic feet of water was sold to customers.

The difference is 82 million cubic feet - or 32 percent - of unaccounted-for water.

"We would have to raise the water rates due to the enormous water losses. We said "no" to that. We will find the people stealing the water. Where we have any leaks in the system, we will correct them," McAnally said.

People found stealing the water, McAnally said, will be prosecuted. The maximum penalty for someone found guilty of stealing water is a $500 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

"For every gallon of water stolen, it hurts the customers more. We will hire someone to catch the people stealing the water. If we find them, we'll bring them to court, we'll fine them, we'll jail them. But we

Crime in Romulus is down seven percent for the first six months of 1988, according to statistics provided by the police department.

"Total crime is down by seven percent with 182 less incidents reported," said Romulus Police Chief Charles E. Wilmoth, comparing the crime statistics for the first six months of 1988 to the same period last year.

Serious, violent crimes are down by eight cases, one-half of a percent, and property, or less serious, crimes are down by 174 cases, an 11 percent reduction, according to reports.

Citizens protest railroad expansion

By KIM KOESTER
ANP Special Writer

More than 30 residents and State Representative James Kosteva protested a move by CSX Corp. to expand its facility at an Aug. 4 public hearing.

The public hearing was planned by the Department of Natural Resources to hear public concern.

CSX had plans to build a warehouse facility along the railroad in Romulus, between Eureka and Pennsylvania roads.

The area being considered for the project is a wetland.

City officials brought the issue to the attention of the DNR when CSX Corp. began construction on the wetland site. The DNR issued an order to stop construction until a study can be completed.

Brooks Williamson, a DNR representative, said the purpose of the meeting was to hear citizens' concerns and any facts pertaining to the case.

Despite a request by CSX officials to keep the meeting only to the subject of wetlands, city officials and residents both brought up the problem that exists already with trains blocking traffic in the city and the concern that this expansion could cause more problems.

Residents also refuted CSX officials' claims that there is little wildlife in the area and that wildlife would still have access to the wetlands area.

Because of CSX expanding business, the company needs an area to load, unload and hold the cars they ship, officials said.

The proposed facility would be built on a portion of a pond which is part of the wetlands. CSX plans include the addition of a new pond for wildlife.

"We should make them recreate what they have already destroyed," said Mary Hatton of Olive Street.

Mayor Beverly McAnally said citizens are also concerned about access from one end of the city to another. She said this building would cause additional limits to this access.

Romulus residents "have the right to anticipate free access," she said.

Councilman William Wadsworth said "I feel this is to the detriment of this town."

Kosteva requested the DNR to enforce the wetlands act.

Williamson stressed that the DNR has not made a decision and other federal departments will also have input into the problem.

Patience is appreciated

Dear Reader:

We owe you an explanation. And a huge word of thanks.

During the past two weeks, several factors - many beyond our control - have caused delivery of your Wednesday newspaper to be delayed. Many of you have called, requesting an explanation. Others have stopped by our offices, seeking answers.

And all of you have been patient. Something for which we are grateful.

Two weeks ago, several changes in our personnel team, the absence of several key staff members due to vacations and a very hectic newspaper week because of election preparations caused a more than seven-hour delay in the paper production.

Last week, a thunderstorm near Lansing - where our paper is printed - caused a more than seven-hour power outage. This absence of electricity, obviously, prohibited the timely printing of our newspapers.

With those catastrophes behind us, however, we are returning to our normal production schedule. This will mean that you should receive your Wednesday paper on time and without delay.

All of us at the Associated Newspapers are grateful for the patience and understanding all of you have displayed during these unusual past two weeks. We ask for your continued support and your continued comments, suggestions and concerns.

Thanks again for all you have done.

General election deadline is set

With the Aug. 2 primary election behind them, Wayne County voters now can await the Tuesday, Nov. 8 general election. In that vote, the U.S. president, several congressional seats, state, county and a variety of township officeholders will be selected.

Those who are not yet registered to vote have until Tuesday, Oct. 11 to do so at their local community clerk's office or at the offices of the Michigan Secretary of State.

Voters planning to vote absentee in the general election have until 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 5 to submit their absentee-ballot application.

Additional election information is available by contacting the Wayne County election information office, 224-5525.

Inkster officials laud jury verdict

Inkster city and police officials said they were pleased Monday with the verdicts handed down by a Wayne County jury in the murder trials of Alberta Easter and her three sons. The officials applauded the verdicts and said that they are happy "to have all of this behind us now."

Easter, 70, and her three sons, William, Roy and George, were found guilty on three counts of first-degree murder in the July 9 slayings of police Sgt. Ira Parker and patrolmen Daniel Dubiel and Clay Hoover at the Bungalow Motel, on Michigan Avenue, in Inkster.

Inkster Police Chief James Buckley was on vacation this week and was not available for comment. However, Deputy Police Chief Terry Colwell said he and other department officials were elated.

"Naturally, we are all relieved that the jury brought in guilty verdicts for all four of the defendants," Colwell said. "I think that the community has again spoken through the jury and their verdict."

Inkster City Manager Grady Holmes was also pleased.

"That verdict lifted a heavy burden from the shoulders of this city," Holmes said. "We are pleased (with the verdict). Very pleased. At this point, all we are looking forward to is getting things back to normal. It has been tough for all of us who have been involved."

Fate of Eloise is questioned

City of Westland and Wayne County officials may soon be caught in a vicious tug-of-war because of the Eloise property, in Westland.

The property seems to be a likely candidate for the new county jail facility because it is already owned by the county, County Executive Edward McNamara said.

The property also seems to be a lucrative site for commercial and industrial growth related to airport expansion, Westland Mayor Charles "Trav" Griffin said.

The property is currently being scrutinized for both purposes. But, Griffin said, "it is either one or the other."

From staff reports

New jail: County officials eye Westland as site

By BARBARA ALBERT
ANP Staff Writer

When area residents voted in favor of an additional 1-mill jail millage for Wayne County last week, little did they know that the jail might be built in their own back yard.

A recent report from Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara revealed that Westland and Ecorse top the list as possible jail locations.

McNamara said the report was premature and that other cities will be considered. But both Ecorse and Westland have advantages as jail locations.

The Eloise property in Westland, on Merriman Road, at Michigan Avenue, could be the site of the new prison, according to McNamara.

"The practicality with the Westland site is that we (the county) own it," McNamara said.

McNamara has set a rigid schedule for completion of the new facility, and having property in hand would hasten the project, he said.

Westland Mayor Charles Griffin said he never approached county officials about building the jail at the Eloise site and is adamantly opposed to the proposed jail development.

"That property is a valuable commercial and industrial area," Griffin said. "It could be very beneficial to the county and the city as a tax base."

The Eloise property has been scrutinized for many years and is currently the subject of a study to determine how the area should be marketed.

Area officials believe that, with expansion plans at Metro Airport, in Romulus, the site could become valuable for airport-related industry.

McNamara said the new jail facility would take up only a small portion of the property. Plenty of room would still be available for future development, he said.

"I think others would still build there," McNamara said. He added that the new jail facility will be built so that it is very "compatible" with surrounding development.

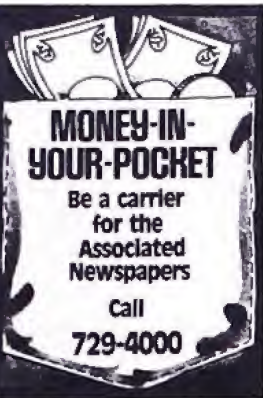

Griffin disagreed and said that building a jail there would render the site useless as an industrial and commercial site.

The Eloise property is currently off the tax rolls. If the jail is built on the site, the property would remain tax-exempt. If the area were turned into an industrial park, however, both Westland and the county would profit from taxes.

Ecorse was also mentioned as a prime location for the new jail. City officials there seem anxious to see that kind of development in a city that is facing financial hardship.

McNamara, however, doubts the people of Ecorse feel the same way.

The property under consideration in Ecorse is privately owned, which means it would take some time before county officials could obtain the land and begin the project.

Senior Center plans potluck

Romulus seniors are planning a potluck picnic in the senior park at 5 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 16. Officials at the center will provide table service and meat.

Interested seniors are asked to visit the Senior Center and reserve a spot. Seniors are also asked to bring a dish to pass.

Also planned is a trip to Grand Ledge on the tour bus Thursday, Aug. 18. Five seats are still available, and the tour "promises to be a lot of fun." Call Marilyn at 942-6852 for more details.

"Garage-sale" seniors are encouraged to sign-up at center for a trip visiting area garage sales on Friday, Aug. 19.

Youth volunteers needed in program

The Youth Assistance Program at the Romulus Help Center needs volunteer counselors to assist youths between the ages of 7 and 17 on a one-on-one basis.

Counselors need to be adults, of good personal standing and possess the attention, care, support and guidance needed to help the youths achieve positive behavior goals, program officials said.

The Romulus Youth Assistance Program currently has 35 volunteer counselors. But, with the addition of the comprehensive services offered, the program can benefit from more aides.

A five-session training program is provided. Interested people can contact Mark Small, program coordinator, at 942-7585.

Cypress Park to be lighted

Cypress Park, located at Cypress and Wayne roads, may be lighted in the near future if a recommended program is approved by the federal office of Housing and Urban Development.

The funds may be approved by the end of August, city officials said. If approved, staff members from the community development office can request to let for bids for the purchase of the lighting and installation.

A proposed allocation of $2,000 exists for the lighting. If Wayne County officials determine that this constitutes a construction department, an environmental assessment and publication of the standard environmental legal notice will be required, prior to the letting of bids.

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally said she hopes the lighting will be installed and be functional by next summer.

City numbers are changed

The telephone number for the city of Romulus (941-0666) Civic Center has been disconnected. Each department in the city has new numbers.

Vocational-education students receive job skills for future

By BARBARA ALBERT
ANP Staff Writer

Summer vacation from school is giving special education youngsters the opportunity to explore career options at the William D. Ford Vocational Technical Center, in Westland.

Area special education students are taking advantage of summer recess from school to test out the various programs offered at the vocational school and learn how best to pursue a career.

The summer school program is being funded by the Wayne County Private Industry Corporation and is open to young people between the ages of 15 and 21 with emotional impairments, learning disorders and physical disabilities.

"It's just unbelievable how great the program has turned out," said Tom Laslo, one of three supervisors for the program.

Laslo, John Vladu and Bill Fife are all teachers with the Wayne-Westland school district during the school year. But, this summer, they are working with the summer school program.

Laslo is impressed by how well the young people get along and how much help the non-handicapped students are to those with physical disabilities.

"They are always helping each other out," Laslo said. Therefore, this has not only been a summer to get some vocational education, but a time for young people to learn about getting along together, Laslo explained.

The eight-week program, now nearly halfway complete, includes 60 young people from Wayne, Westland, Livonia, Romulus, Inkster and Canton Township.

Each group of students will spend a week in each of six learning groups at the center. Students will receive a chance to learn about culinary arts, data processing, media production, auto mechanics, health occupations and photography.

Dominic Ligi, of Livonia, is confined to a wheelchair. But he has not let that stand in the way of his participation in all of the various areas.

"It's really quite interesting," Ligi said. "I've worked with the auto mechanics, the data processing and the photography. And I like them all."

Ligi hopes to pursue a career in computer graphics.

Laslo said the students are sometimes skeptical about the programs before they try them out. But that changes after the first day in the particular area.

"Some of the kids don't want to do the auto mechanics, but, after they get into it, they like it," Laslo said.

The students spend a week in each of the programs, receiving a taste of what it is like. Students also do classroom work on writing resumes and cover letters and interviewing for a job.

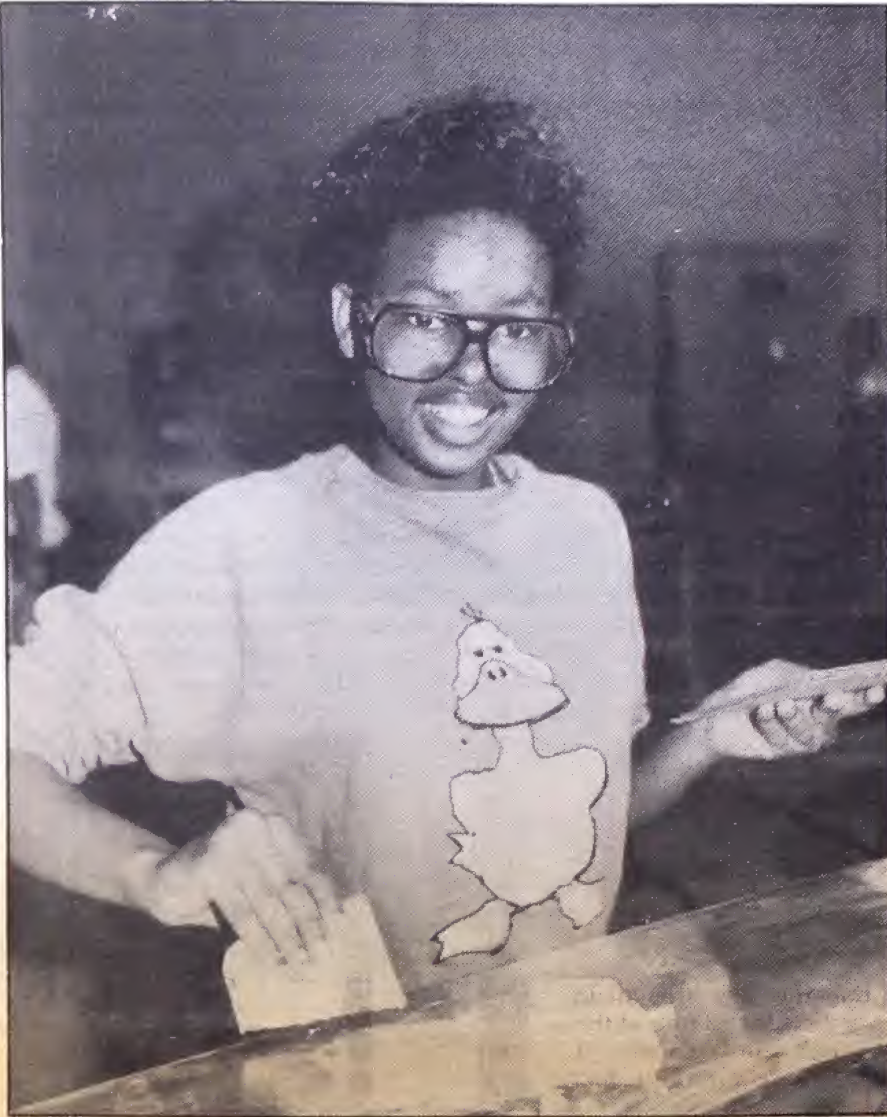

The students are in school from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and then eat a lunch prepared by those in the culinary arts class.

In the afternoons, Laslo said, the students go to work helping custodians in the various schools prepare for the new school year.

This is the first year for this particular summer school program, and Laslo hopes to see it back again next year.

Young adults participating in area special education programs are keeping busy this summer at the William Ford Vocational Center in Westland. Bernadette Thomas (right) of Romulus is just one of many students exploring different career opportunities at the center. Thomas, 18, was reluctant about working in the auto mechanics lab, but once there she decided it was fun. 11-percent turn out for primary vote

By KIM KOESTER
ANP Special Writer

About 11 percent of Romulus voters cast ballots in the Aug. 2 primary election. Out of 15,000 registered voters, 1,601 voted, according to Romulus City Clerk Linda Choate.

The absentee ballots made up the largest percentage of voters with precinct seven at Mt.

Pleasant School coming in second.

"Turnout is up and down, depending on the election," Choate said. She had no explanation for why this turnout was so low.

She does, however, expect a larger turnout for the presidential elections in November.

Riegle and Ford, Democrats, were unopposed in the primary. Romulus voters preferred Jim Dunn over Robert Huber for U.S. Senator, 155 to 120.

For representative, Romulus voters preferred Glen Kasel over Burl Adkins.

The Wayne County jail millage proposal failed in Romulus, 825 votes to 549 votes. The Wayne County Intermediate School District special education millage also failed in Romulus, 847 to 492 votes.

tions," Carr said. He added that cuts may come in the form of teacher layoffs.

Of 15,000 registered voters in Romulus, only 1,601 cast ballots in the Aug. 2 primary.

A suggestion by school officials to put a bond proposal on the November ballot to promote technology and make improvements in the schools may now be delayed.

Crime

city make it unique in terms of crime, according to Wilmoth.

Wilmoth said the crime problem is the result of transients and not residents of the community.

Wilmoth attributes the decrease in crime to several small programs within the police department.

"When you put them all together they become a great crime fighting deterrent," he said.

Some of those deterrents include increased visibility of officers on the street, the neighborhood watch program, additional freeway patrol, and an increase in arrests.

Violent crimes concern Wilmoth most. He said he uses these as a measure of the department's effectiveness.

The most notable reductions, according to Wilmoth, are those for rape, down 25 percent; robbery, down 15 percent; burglary, down nine percent; and murder, down 33 percent.

There was also a 51 percent decline in disorderly conduct arrests, a 33 percent decrease in sex offenses and a 19 percent decrease in malicious destruction of property.

Drunken driving arrests were down 20 percent.

"Patrol miles driven have increased 28 percent with 61,286 additional miles driven which indicates the increased emphasis the department has directed towards high visibility of our road patrol operation," Wilmoth noted in his report.

There have been 66 more accidents reported in 1988 than during the first six months of 1987.

Nine percent of the accidents involved alcohol, Wilmoth said.

"The alcohol involvement is a nine percent increase over the same period last year," Wilmoth said.

will put a stop to this," the mayor said.

Water that is stolen, McAnally said, is obtained by installing an illegal tap or by bypassing the water in a main. The water is not registered as being used, since it is not read by a water meter.

Three master water meters will be installed at Detroit Metropolitan Airport and will be easily accessible by city DPW personnel. In the past, DPW personnel have been unable to freely gain access to water meters within the airport grounds, McAnally said.

Dispute-resolution to ease court docket

As our prisons continue to fill up with violent criminals and our courts become more crowded, lawmakers and concerned citizens are proposing alternatives to costly litigation and incarceration.

In past months, members of the state House have voted to fund community-based corrections programs for certain non-violent offenders and to establish an alternative method of resolving minor legal disputes between private citizens.

In legislation approved by the state House, a city, county, regional or nonprofit service agency could receive state funding for programs and services that provide correctional sanctions outside prison or jail. Offenders would not be eligible for community placement if they committed a violent felony, a crime that involved a weapon or if they had a record of violent behavior.

A locally appointed board, in conjunction with local courts, would develop effective alternatives to prison sentences, including restitution to the crime victim or mandatory work in public programs. The programs would include employment and job-training, education and treatment services and require residential restrictions for offenders who need a structured living environment.

Community-based corrections programs would be regulated by state corrections officials and subject to regular review. The local boards and the oversight provided in the legislation would help ensure that these programs would provide safe, effective and less-expensive alternatives to prison for certain individuals.

Differences between neighbors or between businesses and consumers all too often end up in court. Once the disputing parties are in litigation, they encounter expensive legal costs and crowded court dockets, resulting in expensive and time-consuming delays.

In response to these problems, members of the state House have passed a two-bill package that would establish community dispute-resolution centers throughout Michigan.

At these centers, disputing parties could work through a mediator to reach a solution to their conflict. The centers would provide conciliation, mediation, arbitration and other dispute-resolution services. Participation would be voluntary and by mutual agreement of the disputing parties.

Residents are creative in attempt to keep cool

By JIM RINK
ANP Staff Writer

The people of western Wayne County are taking a lot of heat. Temperatures in the 90- and 100-degree range have caused a mass exodus to the shopping malls, movie theaters and other air-conditioned areas.

Despite the mid-summer swelter, local health professionals report that most people are keeping their cool and exercising caution before going outdoors.

"People seem to be really sensible about it," said Dr. James McClay, of McAuley Urgent Care, in Plymouth. "The biggest problem is dehydration - people who work outdoors don't drink between break times and run out of fluids."

McClay said extreme temperatures are most likely to affect the young and the old. He recommends drinking water throughout the day, even if there are no visible symptoms of dehydration.

"People that go out when it's too hot can become sick to their stomachs," said McClay. "They don't feel like drinking, and they get even more sick. It's a vicious cycle."

Heat stroke, or the uncontrolled rising of internal body temperature, McClay said, has not been a major problem this summer.

Nevertheless, McClay recommended staying out of the heat, staying indoors, going to movies, malls - even renting motel rooms. If someone must go outdoors, he said, it is wise to wear some kind of head-covering.

For Sally Levay, director of public relations at Westland Convalescent Center, keeping patients and staff cool may be as simple as a "beat the heat campaign."

"We've got 10-gallon jugs of lemonade at each nurse's station," said Levay. "The staff is allowed to wear shorts this week. Volunteers have been coming in twice a day to pass out lemonade."

Complaints from patients about the heat have been relatively few in number, Levay said, despite a temporary lack of air conditioning in the sitting rooms and dining rooms.

"Things are going well," she said. "We're keeping them hydrated, providing lots of liquids, keeping the lights down, trying to find some fun ways to deal with it."

Michigan Avenue work set to end in October

By JIM RINK
ANP Staff Writer

Road construction along Michigan Avenue is ahead of schedule, according to highway officials. But the price tag for progress has already been paid by local businesses along the busy roadway.

Estimated to cost $8 million, improvements to the stretch of U.S. 12 from I-275 east to the Wabash railroad bridge, in Wayne, are expected to be completed in late October. Two lanes will be added to each side of the road.

"Business is down drastically," said Louise Tabor, owner of Fellows Creek Lodge. "It seems more like January or February than August. It's way down - $1,000 per week. That's the gravy."

Tabor said she is renting five to six units less than normal during road construction. The roadway in front of her motel, on the north side, is torn apart, leaving a 5- to 6-inch gap between the dirt and her driveway.

"The road - people are afraid they'll get hung up on it," she said. "People are leery of where the boundaries are when there's a drop-off. Everybody in this area is saying the business is really suffering."

"I'm losing 20 percent of my business," said John Mistak, vice president of Walter's

Home Appliances. "People are avoiding Michigan Avenue. I wonder how many went to some other store, period."

"I hope the road improvements bring more retail stores into the area. There's nothing here but me or McDonald's," he continued.

Traffic during the construction process has been flowing relatively smoothly, according to Ralph Magid, director of public services for the city of Wayne. Cooperative efforts between the city and the Holloway Construction Co. have resulted in much of the paving being done at night, to relieve congestion.

The next focus of construction will be on Hannan Road, the boundary line separating Canton Township and the city of Wayne, according to John Wisniewski, a project engineer with the Michigan Department of Transportation.

"We're trying to get drive-ways ready, taking Hannan Road apart," Wisniewski said. "We're getting it ready for new concrete today or tomorrow. We'll try to have it open in three days."

MDOT will pave 100 feet of Hannan, south of Michigan Avenue, to provide a major traffic outlet during construction.

The project will be completed on schedule, "unless something drastic happens," Wisniewski said.

STATE NEWS DIGEST

Drought relief sought in state

The recently approved Michigan Department of Agriculture budget includes several hundred thousand dollars to help state farmers and their families recover from the devastating 1988 drought.

Programs supported by the special appropriations will also help farmers improve their operations for future expansion.

Stiff penalties OK'd for drugs

A new law increases the jail terms and fines faced by adults convicted of dealing drugs around school children.

Penalties are doubled for possession of marijuana, cocaine and other controlled substances on school property.

An adult convicted of selling drugs in these areas could face up to three times the maximum jail term for drug offenses. The law also authorizes mandatory imprisonment with no probation or suspended sentence for repeat offenders.

Victim testing is available

A new state law requires hospitals to offer an assault evidence examination to victims of apparent sexual assault.

Hospital staff members are required to inform victims of the availability of a state-supplied kit that contains equipment to collect physical evidence necessary to successfully prosecute the assailant.

'Swing beds' OK in hospitals

Certain Michigan hospitals will be able to implement the federally authorized "swing bed" program for Medicare and Medicaid patients who no longer need acute care but still require skilled medical services, under a new state law.

Previous licensing laws did not allow hospitals to offer both acute care and skilled care.

Swing-bed programs would be established mainly in smaller rural hospitals, serving communities where nursing-home beds are often not available.

Police officers' records checked

A new law will open records to law enforcement agencies checking the background of prospective police employees.

Under Michigan law, people convicted of one felony offense are permitted to have the conviction expunged or erased from their records five years after the successful completion of their sentence.

Currently, only court officials or the governor could have access to records of expunged convictions.

Medication lists will be required

A new law that requires yearly inventories of certain prescription drugs will help control how medications with the highest potential for abuse and dependency — such as codeine, morphine, barbiturates and amphetamines — are dispensed in Michigan.

The new inventory requirements apply to anyone licensed to manufacture, distribute, prescribe or dispense the specified drugs.

Governor's power is broadened

The Michigan governor will now be able to respond more quickly and effectively to public health emergencies caused by tampering of food and medicines, under a new state law.

The new law gives the governor clear authority to order adulterated products removed from stores and to take other actions.

This authority has been fragmented between various state departments in the past.

Drought: Trees and shrubs need 'watery love'

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

Next time you water the drought-stricken lawn, remember to keep the trees and shrubs green, too, according to local landscapers.

"The number one thing to remember during the drought is to forget the grass because that will grow back," said Dennis Hermatz, owner of Wayne Lawn and Garden Center, in Wayne. "Be concerned about the trees and shrubbery. That's what really matters."

Although the brown and scorched lawn may look hideous this year because of a lack of water, Hermatz said, nature's green carpet will grow back next year. But he warned that trees and shrubs should now be concentrated on for protection from the heat.

"If you don't water the grass, it will suffer. But the grass will come back next year. Now, you have to be concerned with the trees and shrubs. There's really no way of knowing how long it will take to kill the big trees without them having water," he said.

During a normal year, Hermatz said, water is generally in an abundance for the roots of a tree. This year, however, he said that water may not be available because of the drought, which is into its third month.

But, there is a way to save the trees without the grass and other plants soaking the water, said Joan Kubrinski, assistant horticulturist at the University of Michigan. While watering with a sprinkler may help a little, she said, a deep root watering system, available at Frank's Nursery and other area lawn and garden stores, could solve the problem by watering slowly and for long periods of time.

As far as watering the lawn or garden, Hermatz offered these tips:

- Gardens only have to be watered periodically. With occasional watering, back yard crops should flourish;

- Berry-type bushes or plants should be watered heavily since berries contain approximately 90 percent water. This year, because of a lack of water, Hermatz said, berries are about one-fourth the normal size;

- Do not fertilize the lawn in warm weather since it will burn the grass; and

- Do not water the lawn in weather above 95 degrees because the water will mix with the heat and scald the grass.

For people concerned that their lawn does not have the slightest chance of being resurrected should plant grass seed in September. He advises people should water grass seed frequently and let it grow slightly longer before mowing it.

But as the drought has hurt farmers and local homeowners lawns, landscapers and lawn maintenance workers have also suffered, he said.

Motorcycle group blasts all-terrain ad campaign

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Members of the Michigan Motorcycle Dealers' Association are upset and are filing a complaint with the Federal Communications Commission because of the way all-terrain vehicles are portrayed in public service announcements.

The commercials, which are sponsored by the Michigan State Medical Society, conclude that "off-road vehicles can be fun but also dangerous and that consumers should learn the facts before buying."

The commercial ends with the statement "Don't learn the hard way."

In a June 30 form letter sent to station managers, members of the motorcycle organization stated that the announcements portray the use of all-terrain vehicles in an extremely unfavorable light, without any balance.

Jim Ruttman, owner of Ruttmans, in Dearborn Heights, hasn't seen the commercials but doesn't see all-terrain vehicles as safety problems.

"I don't see them (all-terrain vehicles) any more dangerous than a car," Ruttman said. "If you run into something, it's going to hurt."

Ruttman said the vehicles are selling fairly well.

Despite the complaints by motorcycle dealers, physicians across the state feel the ads aren't strong enough. Officials of the medical society are considering a legal response to the threats and intimidations of the Michigan Motorcycle Dealers' Association.

"We are shocked and disappointed in these threats to the television stations from both the association and from individual dealers," said Dr. Fred W. Bryant, of Royal Oak. "The medical society's top priority is the safety and welfare of our patients. If that were the priority of the dealers, they would be supporting us."

More than 1,000 people nationwide, including 50 in Michigan, have died as a result of ATV accidents since 1982, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

"We specifically did not condemn these machines in the announcement as many people in public service have," said Bryant.

New bank law to change little

Local banking officials praised a new law which allows Michigan banks to operate anywhere in the state. However, the same officials aren't predicting many changes for banking consumers.

The new law, which went into effect Aug. 1, allows state banking institutions to operate branch offices anywhere in the state of Michigan. Formerly, Michigan banking laws had mandated that bank branches had to be located within 25 miles of the main office.

Raymond A. Reame, president of the First of America Bank-Wayne, in Wayne, said because banks in Michigan have been able to form holding companies since 1971, they already have been located throughout the state.

"I don't think we will see a mad dash across the state of Michigan to start more branches," Reame said, "because probably most banks have offices in the market areas they wish to be in."

"However," he continued, "we may see more investigation into given markets and could see some additional banks opening."

Nevertheless, Richard Johnson, vice president of corporate communications at the National Bank of Detroit, said the move will help banks, by allowing them to expand into untouchable neighborhoods under older banking laws.

Eric Radcliffe, assistant manager of Manufacturers Bank, in Romulus, said he believes the new state law will "help us reach customers better" and will "make things easier for the banks, although it may aid the larger banks more than the smaller ones."

Special celebration

More than 40 teams from across Michigan converged on Canton Township Friday and Saturday to participate in the Michigan Special Olympics State Softball Tournament. The event was staged at the Canton Softball Center, on Michigan Avenue. A primary competition for the Special Olympians, a group of mentally impaired athletes, was staged before opening ceremonies Friday. The Plymouth Drum Corps was well received by the athletes (above), as it performed for the event. Competitions ended Saturday afternoon in closing ceremonies. Teams from the western Wayne County area were represented during the event, according to program organizers. ANP photo by Debbie Pounthney

Plan protested

Official wants changes on hospital board

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

Further action has been taken by one city official in an attempt to stop the Peoples Community Hospital Authority from reorganizing into a private, non-profit organization.

Melvindale Mayor Thomas Coogan has sent formal letters to each mayor of the 24-member PCHA community to consider replacing representatives on the PCHA board "with ones that will decide for the people."

"The letter is asking that each mayor replaces all of their representatives on the PCHA board with people that will decide for the needs of the city," Coogan said. "I think the letter will have much more of an impact than a phone call."

Public Act 273, signed into law July 15 by Gov. Blanchard and passed by members of both houses of the state legislature in June, would allow the PCHA to transfer all assets - believed to be worth between $300 and $500 million - to United Care Inc., a private, non-profit organization. The name, United Care Inc., was voted on and approved by the 47-member PCHA board at the last public meeting.

Articles and bylaws have already been established.

Coogan's action is the latest step taken in expressing opposition to the proposed reorganization of the public hospital authority. Coogan, along with mayors from six other cities, opposes the plan because it would allow the assets and a $23 million cash surplus to be transferred from the PCHA to United Care without any payments to the taxpayers.

The PCHA was formed in 1945 by state lawmakers. It is funded, in part, by an up-to-.4 mill tax levy on residents of the 24-member communities, including Wayne, Westland, Romulus, Belleville, Inkster, Van Buren and Sumpter townships. Currently, the millage rate is set at .2 milles.

Communities expressing concern and opposition about the transferring of PCHA assets include Allen Park, Ecorse, Flat Rock, Lincoln Park, Melvindale, River Rouge and Southgate. Officials of all of the cities, except Allen Park, are considering filing a lawsuit against the PCHA.

Nevertheless, some city officials are praising the reorganization plan, saying that member communities will actually save money if the assets are transferred to the new organization.

Area officials opposing casino-gambling project

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

In baseball, get three strikes - and you're out.

But Detroit Mayor Coleman Young will certainly be campaigning for another time at bat and one last play for casino gambling in the Motor City.

Young received the message for the third time in 12 years that residents of Detroit are opposed to casino gambling in their city, as they voted "no" on a ballot proposal during the Aug. 2 primary election.

Local residents this week are joining the opposition and are promising to fight casino gambling in Detroit until the end.

"I'm not in favor of casino gambling, and I don't think it's the answer for the city of Detroit," said Wayne City Councilman Bob Beeny. "Just look at Atlantic City. A block off the boardwalk are slums. The gambling was supposed to revitalize the whole town. But it hasn't."

"It's the wrong way for Detroit to go."

City council members from Romulus were the first group in the state to oppose casino gambling, according to Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally.

"We were the first community to oppose even forming a commission to look into gambling," McAnally said. "Michigan has plenty of assets without bringing gambling into the state."

Both McAnally and Beeny agreed that the negative effects of gambling would reach western Wayne County. The threat of gambling should be prevented, they said.

"Gambling would have an extremely adverse effect on Detroit and the surrounding communities - including Romulus," said McAnally.

"It would encourage an element of people who would come through our city. These are people we have tried to keep out. I don't gamble, and I think it represents false hopes. The odds are certainly in favor of the casinos and not the gambler," she continued.

"It would have a general negative impact on the whole region, not just Detroit," Beeny agreed.

"I think it would affect us in Wayne," Beeny said. "It has, too, because Detroit is the hub for the entire area. It has to find another way to build up its tax base. If they don't, that will also affect us."

A favorite companion of casino gambling is crime, officials said. But if Detroit does begin to provide roulette tables and slot machines, will the crime that goes with gambling reach the suburbs?

I'm not in favor of casino gambling, and I don't think it's the answer for the city of Detroit.

"I don't know if it would affect us out here," said Fred Dansby, police chief for the city of Westland. "We are almost 20 miles from Detroit. From what I understand, the crime is fairly restricted to the general area. If there was an increase, it would be in street crimes, because that is the type of crime that usually goes along with casino gambling."

But what about the money and the positive side of casino gambling? What about all the tourists coming to the area to gamble, shop and eat?

"I would be very surprised if business picked up in Wayne," said Donna McEachern, executive secretary for the city of Wayne. "Most of the action would take place around the casinos. Any effect out here would not likely be at the airport."

Such an effect is one McAnally hopes never to see.

"I don't want a lot of charter aircraft bringing people through our city, (people) who are here to gamble in Detroit," she said. "A lot would go through Detroit City Airport, but we would get our share."

Nevertheless, state Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville) doesn't believe that McAnally, Beeny, McEachern or Dansby will have to worry about casino gambling in Detroit or anywhere else in the state.

"It's never been taken up on the state level, and I don't think it ever will," said Geake, who is also opposed to casino gambling in Detroit.

"Detroit has enough problems without bringing in more with gambling. And the people I have talked to in this area agree with me."

Geake believes the effect gambling would have on residents of Canton, Westland, Wayne, Romulus, Inkster and other communities in the area would not be positive.

"With the increase in crime and with more people ending up on welfare, people will be paying more taxes. But I would be very surprised if they ever approved casino gambling in Detroit."

Beating the heat

The thermometer may have peaked at the 90- and the 100-degree marks last week, but area residents found several creative ways to beat the heat. From pools and air-conditioned malls to plenty of cool, liquid thirst-quenchers, the summer scorcher was dampened and made less severe. Among those searching for innovative ways to beat the heat Thursday were Romulus residents Kim Cox (left) and her children Jessie (center) and Ronald, 2, both age 2. The backyard pool was a splashing relief for the playful threesome. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer

We need promise of open jail space

They have pledged their money. Now, they expect a return. They are the voters in western Wayne County who last week approved a special 1-mill tax levy to finance the building of a new Wayne County jail. They are the residents who have heard for almost two years the horror stories of convicted criminals being released from prison early because of a lack of jail space.

They are the voters who will now watch with a skeptical eye as county officials attempt to remedy the prison disaster before us – a task they promised to complete if the special millage were approved.

The prison overcrowding crisis in Wayne County need not be repeated. For too long have these readers been bombarded with the sad stories of prison terms being sharply reduced for convicted felons, misdemeanor offenders being refused at the county jail and local judges being made powerless by the absence of any hard-core correctional facility available for criminals convicted of such "petty" crimes as shoplifting, drunk driving and other small thefts.

The new Wayne County jail, county officials say, will be home to 840 of these "prisoners without a prison." The 470-bed facility will put an end to the unspoken ban on sending misdemeanor offenders to the county jail – a ban which our local judges must deal with every day.

Indeed, construction of the new jail seemed like the most logical alternative. The solution to our problem came with a price tag, however, a price tag to the tune of more than $20.5 million each year.

Voters in western Wayne County – and throughout the county – agreed to swallow that price tag and approved a special 1-mill tax levy. Clearly, the voters sent a mandate to the county government.

Today, we urge county officials to acknowledge that mandate and heed the plea of our local residents. Each community in Wayne County must be assured of jail space within the county prison system. While western Wayne County remains the constituency of this newspaper, each community within the county deserves a promise that it will not be forgotten when it comes time to "divvy up" the cell blocks and prison space.

Nevertheless, we acknowledge the fact that the jail problems in Wayne County will not disappear overnight. Because of this, we continue to support alternative forms of sentencing – community work programs and home surveillance – and a plea to county judges to push cases through in the most expeditious manner possible.

But we also stress strongly the need for equity among all county communities in the allocation of this new jail space. It took all of these communities to approve the new jail in a ballot proposal. It will take all of these communities to finance the price tag of this new facility.

And it is only sensible that all of these communities should reap the benefits of the investment being made.

Jail debate must be open

The battle is about to begin. And this one is going to be fought in our own back yard.

The battle will be that to decide where the new Wayne County jail will be located. Last week, the majority of voters in Wayne County said they supported construction of the facility, by approving a special 1-mill tax levy to fund the project.

This week, news of the potential site for the jail has reached our ears. And, for many, our ears are still ringing.

One strong contender for the jail site is the Eloise property, located at the corner of Merriman Road and Michigan Avenue, in Westland. The site is ideal, county officials say, because the land is county-owned and construction of the new prison could begin almost immediately.

Another proposed site is in Ecorse. The land there, however, is less attractive to county officials, since it is privately owned and not currently accessible.

Nevertheless, the pros and cons to the new jail being located in Westland are still being thrown on the table. Clearly, residents in the area will be prone to oppose the Westland plan regardless of any positive benefits discussed.

Putting the issues aside, we urge county officials, local residents and lawmakers to observe and agree to a few rules. These rules include: debate the matter openly, debate it frequently and debate with consideration of all parties involved.

Indeed, this battle will become fierce before a victor will be apparent. But this battle will be less bloody if all sides know the rules and play fairly.

" BUT YOU CAN LEAVE THE MILLAGE MONEY BY THE DOOR! "

An explanation, self-pity – and thanks

Warning: This column is completely self-serving.

But what follows needs to be discussed.

OK, I've warned you. You read on at your own risk . . .

Although I shun any column that tells readers of the "gloom and doom" stories of their newspaper, I am going to do just that. I am going to grovel in the very purest example of pleading for pity and asking for forgiveness for any sins committed.

I am going to touch upon a subject so sensitive around this office these days that I had to bury this column on the opinion page – you know, the page you look at quickly for the weekly cartoon and to see if you know any of the people writing "letters to the editor" – to avoid violent threats by my co-workers.

I am going to explain why your paper has not been arriving at your home when it should be. And what you can do to help.

During the last two weeks, I have had the opportunity to speak with many, many, many of you. Although I always welcome the chance to hear what is on the minds of the readers we serve, my ears were ringing with the frustration and confusion many of you expressed because of your late Wednesday paper.

Add to those conversations the chats I had with the parents of our paper carriers. These were not happy individuals. It is Wednesday night. The TV lineup is hot – "Growing Pains," "Head of the Class," "Hooperman" and "St. Elsewhere." The microwave popcorn is golden. But the bundles of papers still have not arrived for Junior to deliver.

I can sympathize. I can relate. There's more.

I heard from the store owners who sell our newspaper for us. After they had to deal with 10 or so angry customers wondering why the newspaper in the rack was one week old, their patience with me was waning. But I listened. I explained.

And I admired them all. I admired the readers who were patient, understanding and cooperative. I admired the paper carriers who did their best to get our newspaper on the street as soon as possible. And I admired the business owners who still allowed us in their stores.

The past two weeks at the Associated Newspapers have been memorable ones. Not because our Wednesday newspaper was received by most readers on Thursday – but because we again realized how important our major strength is to us. Our major strength is our readers.

Two weeks ago, many people here at the Associated Newspapers were on vacation. Many people here were new to our force.

Also that week was our special coverage for the Aug. 2 primary election. The special coverage is very important to us, but it is also very time-consuming.

Because of these factors – and a few others – our production process was delayed by seven hours.

As an explanation, we "put our paper to bed" – a newspaper term – at 5 p.m. Tuesdays. We then send the completed pages to Mason, near Lansing, where the papers are printed and returned to us at approximately 4 a.m. Wednesday.

By 6 a.m., we must have all of the papers sorted, delivered to the appropriate post offices and awaiting the drivers who deliver bundles of newspapers to our carriers and the businesses where our newspaper is sold.

In this procedure, timing is critical. Minutes are precious. A seven-hour delay, you see, is disastrous.

Last Tuesday, our paper left our Wayne offices at 4:45 p.m. We were elated. We had made our deadline with time to spare.

At 8 p.m., I received a phone call from our printer. Mother Nature had struck, and there was no electricity to be found in Mason. No electricity for seven hours. The delay is obvious. Your Wednesday paper, again, had been held hostage to time.

What can you do?

Why do I write this lengthy explanation? Why do I feel compelled to detail our business operations?

Because you deserve it. You deserve an explanation. You deserve to know the way we do business.

You deserve a huge "thank you."

This newspaper can only be as strong and successful as you make it. You are our backbone. We depend on you to subscribe to our product. We depend on you to tell us about news events in the area. We depend on you for advertising support.

In turn, we strive to provide you with the best local news product available in the area. And we strive to help you or the organization you represent in any way possible.

With the disastrous past two weeks behind us, we, at the Associated Newspapers, are confident that you will be receiving your Wednesday newspaper on time. We're confident that you won't need to call us in frustration or dismay.

But future problems are not out of the question. Perhaps your carrier will become ill, your paper may be lost in the mail or an internal problem might cause the temporary interruption of your subscription. We would like to hear about it. We want to help.

I was not kidding when I said that I welcome the chance to hear from readers. Your input improves our product. Your ideas bring new life to our newspapers. And your comments make us re-evaluate what we have produced.

OK, I'm done groveling in self-pity. I have completed my self-serving task. My ears have stopped ringing, and I'm ready to hear from the readers again.

This explanation has ended. . . .

. . . but I still admire you for your patience, your cooperation and your understanding. I'm always here for your comments.

And thanks again for your support!

Ryan retains city golf crown

Champ breaks away from pack

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

The number of participants was down — as were the scores. But outstanding golf performances were everywhere during the 1988 Associated Newspapers-City Championship Golf Tournament last weekend.

The two-day tournament, which concluded late Sunday afternoon, took place at the Fellows Creek Golf Course, in Canton Township. It was the second year in a row the tournament has been played at Fellows Creek.

It was also the second year in a row that Kevin Ryan walked away with the championship trophy.

Ryan, an Inkster resident who didn't register until tee-off time Saturday, shot back-to-back 74s, to give him a total score of 148 and an eight-stroke win over second-place finisher Kevin Schaum, of Canton.

A 148 is four over-par for the par-72 course.

Ryan, 27, won the tournament last year with a sizzling 137.

"I didn't play very well this year," said Ryan, following a hot finish, in which he scored a one-under par on the last seven holes.

I didn't play well this year. I hit a lot of bad shots...and I wasn't able to concentrate today (Sunday). That costs me a few strokes.

—Kevin Ryan
Tourney medalist

"I hit a lot of bad shots, and I wasn't able to concentrate today (Sunday). That cost me a few strokes.

"But I was happy to win. Anytime you win, it's nice," he continued.

Ryan was also the champion for the open division, which included players from Inkster and Belleville.

Mark Morton, of Wayne, who won the Lenny Anderson Memorial trophy as the best finisher in the city of Wayne, was even with the defending champion after the first round on Saturday.

The 22-year-old Morton fired a first-round 74 during a windy Saturday afternoon. On Sunday, the winds left, and Morton's touch seemed to go with it, as he finished in fifth place, with a two-day score of 158.

"I've just had a bad round," said Morton, who also won the Anderson trophy last year.

"I'd say this is my worst round since I've played this tournament. It really came at the wrong time."

Morton fired a 44 on the front nine Sunday, leaving him seven shots behind Ryan. The front-nine disaster included five bogeys and a triple bogey on the par-3 seventh hole.

"I started out really bad and never got going after that," said Morton, who was presented the Wayne trophy by his father, Arthur Morton, the deputy director of public safety for the city of Wayne.

"I had four three-putts, and I hit the ball in the water four times on the front nine. I just didn't play well," he said.

One player who did play well on Sunday was Schaum, who shot a second-round 75 to move into second place for the tournament and first place in Canton.

Romulus Singer repeats

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A fast-charging Paul Niedermeyer came within a stroke of forcing defending champ, Tom Singer, into a "sudden death" playoff for the Romulus City title at the 29th annual City Championship Golf Tournament staged over the weekend at Fellows Creek in Canton Township.

And the Romulus title was decided at the last hole of the two-day tournament where Singer came away with a one-stroke 162-163 victory over the tournament newcomer.

While Singer "played his game", Niedermeyer, playing in his first City Championship Golf tournament, made up his five stroke first-round deficit with an impressive 78 during the championship round. Niedermeyer finished with a 36-hole total of 163, one-stroke behind the defending champ.

Singer launched the defense of his city title with an 80 the first day as he played 'par golf' most of the day on Saturday. He had one birdie on the first round, carding it on the 513-yard, sixth-hole and taking a 41 for the first nine.

On the back nine, Singer came back with a 39, scoring, again with his par golf performance in the stretch.

The champ walked into the clubhouse with a comfortable five-stroke lead over Niedermeyer for the first 18 holes.

Niedermeyer however was ready for the challenge the second day. He didn't fade in the 90-degree heat on Sunday.

Under excellent playing conditions, Niedermeyer played a steady game. He finished the front nine with a 40, making up the five-stroke difference as he and Singer entered the final nine.

Singer and Niedermeyer each parred the next three holes, but at the 13th, the challenger settled for a bogey and fell one-stroke off the pace when Singer sank his putt for a par 5 for the 500-yarder. The match was deadlocked again at the 15 where Niedermeyer came away with his first birdie of the tournament and Singer responded with a par 4.

The defending champ again held the edge by a stroke at the 16th where he carded a par four to his rival's bogey, but the champs lead again dissipated on the next hole and the two faced the final challenge.

The champ again managed to par the 191-yard 18th, and Niedermeyer bogeyed the hole and came away one stroke shy of tying the score and forcing the issue to an overtime. He did, however, receive the runner-up trophy.

"It was great to win," Singer said afterwards.

Romulus crowns champ

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Document Services may have won the regular season championship but when it came to playoff time, arch-rival, Davis Autobody, was ready for the men's Monday/Wednesday Division Romulus champ.

Davis, which played second fiddle to the reigning champs throughout the 1988 softball champ, jolted the league champ, 10-7, to walk off the diamond with the coveted playoff title.

In the meantime, several other divisional titles were decided last week.

Brendco Oil and Toni's Nite Club settled their softball differences in the Women's Division with the Oilers coming away with two gems on their crown.

Both teams finished the year with identical 14-4 records, but in the showdown for all of the marbles, Brendco had the big players and the plays to win a decisive 19-5 decision over their rivals.

Toni's tagged starting pitcher Linda Henson for three runs in the first inning and looked like it was ready to run away with the game. Henson, a 14-4 pitcher on the year, settled down and blanked Toni's battery for five of the remaining six innings. Toni's managed to come up with two runs in the fourth — their final runs in the game.

In the meantime, Brendco answered Toni's charge with a run in the bottom of the first, took the lead with a four-run surge to make it 5-3 after two innings. After the two teams went scoreless in the third frame, Brendco's came back with seven decisive runs in the fourth to take the lead for good.

The champs added icing to the cake with three more runs in the fifth, then finished off their rivals with four in the sixth.

Rocky Patterson and Annette Vitale led the champions at the plate with three hits each. Vitale had a triple. Teammates Sandy Wood, Cathy Odum, and Pam Roberts checked in with two hits apiece.

On the other side of the ledger, Sharon Gdowski and Jennifer Carbonaro's doubles were the only extra hits off Henson who also gave up a pair of singles to Lisa Bahash and singles to Krissy Gdowski and Kriss Gadowski.

Taylor AC and Chrysler Softball Club managed to surface from the long, hot dry summer with perfect records.

Taylor won all 11 of its encounters to emerge with the Men's Sunday Division championship, while Chrysler Softball Club duplicated Taylor's record only in the Men's Friday Blue Division.

Runnerup O'Grady had its last shot at the undefeated champ, but it failed to stop the fast-moving Chrysler lineup. Chrysler won the duel 8-3.

Although Ed's Hangar Lounge remains atop of the Men's Friday Red Division, it dropped a 10-2 division to Kerr's.

Belleville Lodge and Birclar Electric remains within two games of the league pacesetter, and the title issue should be settled before the weekend.

Festival run is cancelled

Without providing an explanation, officials of the second annual Golden Mile Festival in Inkster announced late last week that they have cancelled the 1988 festival.

In a brief statement to the media, festival officials stated that the festival and programs associated with it, which included 10-kilometer and 2-mile runs, have been cancelled.

Officials said that an official statement from festival chairman John Glasnak would be issued, but as of press time on Tuesday, no statement had been received by the Associated Newspapers' sports staff.

According to Inkster city officials, the city and the festival committee did have differing opinions on a wide range of organizational problems, "but we believed that they could have been worked out," according to City Manager Grady Holmes.

Inkster sets tennis tourney deadline

Inkster parks and recreation officials have set a Friday, Aug. 12 deadline for registration in the 10th annual Open Tennis Tournament.

The tournament, slated for Friday, Aug. 19, and Sunday, Aug. 21 will be staged on the tennis courts located behind the Inkster Recreation Complex, 2025 Middlebelt Road, just north of Michigan Avenue.

Ruth E. Williams, athletic supervisor, said that there has already been a lot of interest generated by the tournament. "We usually get 100 players in this tournament each year, and the competition is very good. We are looking for about the same number of participants this year."

Players are divided into age groups and will be competing for trophies. The age group brackets are as follows: Youth, 17 and under, singles ($2.50 entry fee); Youth, 14 and under, ($2.50); Youth Doubles ($5 per team); and Youth Mixed Doubles ($5 per team).

Competition also will be staged for adults at 9 a.m. on Sat., August 20, with the finals planned for Sunday, Aug. 21. The categories available include: Men's singles ($6 per player); Women's singles ($6 per player); Adults (35 and over) singles ($6); Adults doubles ($12 per team); Adult mixed doubles ($12 per team) and Adults (35 and over) doubles — $12.

Prospective players have until 6 p.m. Friday to enter the tournament. There will be a 6 p.m., Wed. Aug. 19 to determine first round pairings.

"From the comments I heard from golfers, the (golf) tournament was another success. I think the numbers were down because of the heat, and many were on vacation."

Art Morton, who serves as Wayne Police Chief, had the unique honor of presenting the Lenny Anderson Memorial Trophy to his son, Mark, who was medalist for Wayne at the 29th annual City Championship Golf Tournament. The Anderson trophy is presented by the Wayne Police Officers' Association to the Wayne resident who finishes as medalist of the Wayne Championship flight. Patrolman Anderson, killed in 1976, was the first Wayne police officer to die in the line of duty in Wayne. It is the second straight year that the young Morton has won the trophy. Upset

There's a new Anderson champ

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

The dynasty has ended for Gorilla Engine.

The talented Wayne team was gunning for a third consecutive championship at the 12th annual Leonard J. Anderson Memorial Invitational last weekend at Anderson Field.

Disaster struck early, however, as the team lost to Master Plumber in the second round and was eliminated by Law Auto in the losers' bracket.

"That shows you how talented the teams were this year," said Larry Quartuccio, tournament manager. "I didn't think they would win again because of the strength of the tournament. They are a very good team, but it's hard to repeat and dominate a tournament where there are so many good players."

When the dust had finally cleared, New World, of Dearborn Heights, walked off with the championship trophy and a berth in the United States Slow-Pitch Softball Association Divisional Championship for Class B-ranked teams. The winners are automatically given a berth in the national tournament, which will take place in Rockford, Ill.

New World defeated Morris Inc., of Westland, in the championship game, 7-4. The big blow came in the sixth inning, when Bob Stewart, of New World, hit a grand slam, giving the team a 6-4 lead.

On the way to the title, New World won games against National Trails (20-15), Western Waterproofing (10-4), Master Plumber (20-4) and Morris Inc. (13-4).

Morris Inc. reached the finals with wins over Schewe Collision (20-2), Manitowoc (11-10), Wimsatt/Al's Market (18-12) and National Trails (6-0).

The tournament honors Leonard Anderson, a former Wayne police officer, who was killed in the line of duty in 1974. The tournament has grown during the past 12 years. 1988 was another successful year, according to Quartuccio.

"The tournament went very well," he said. "We had more than 300 people throughout the weekend. The entire three days, we had great crowds. This event even brings out the type of person who isn't necessarily a softball fan but just enjoys being there."

There is also something for the true softball fan.

"There are some of the best softball players in the area participating in this tournament," said Quartuccio. "And some of the best in the state."

National Trails, which finished third in the tournament, is currently ranked number two in the state in Class B. Morris Inc. is also ranked in the top 10.

Fall schedules, please

Area high school athletic directors are urged to mail their 1988-89 fall sports schedules to the Associated Newspapers Sports Staff.

Schedules and the home telephone numbers of any new coach would be appreciated.

The 1988 high school football season is scheduled to get underway on Friday, Sept. 2 for most local high schools. Schedules are needed from Wayne Memorial, Westland John Glenn, Belleville, Romulus, New Boston Huron, Inkster, Plymouth Canton and Salem, Livonia Franklin and Churchill.

Those wishing further information may contact Staff Writers Tom Mooradian and Terry Jacoby at 729-4000.

Newcomer Paul Niedermeyer gave defending champ Tom Singer(center) a scare before losing to the Romulus champ by one stroke on the final hole of the 36-hole tournament. Terry Lemieux came away with the third place trophy. ANP photo by Chris Pandolf/freelance photographer

It was Ted Thompson's (center) first appearance at the City Golf Championships but he made it a winning one. Thompson scored a one-stroke victory over Murry Brooks to win the Westland title while Darrin Kent (at right) finished third.

"I don't hit the ball long," he said. "I just hit it straight and try to play my game and worry about what I'm doing out there."

"I missed five birdie-putts within 5 feet, so I could have played better. But I played well, and I am thrilled that I won Canton."

It was Schaum's 18th appearance in the 29-year-old tournament and his second Canton victory.

John Sample, of Belleville, finished in a tie for third overall and took home the second-place trophy in the open division.

Bob Wanniger, of Canton, tied Sample for third overall and finished second for the Canton championship. Ryan, Morton, Samples and Wanniger were the top four finishers after the first round.

"It was very windy (Saturday)," said Samples, who fired a first-round 78 and a second-round 79.

"But, today, I have no excuses. I played well, but you're rarely happy or satisfied with your performance."

Wanniger, who is a past winner from Romulus, had problems with his putter.

"My putting has really hurt me," he said. "I had 38 putts yesterday and at least that many today."

Both Samples and Wanniger finished Sunday with nine pars and a birdie.

Ted Thompson, of Westland, finished with a 160, one stroke better than Murray Brooks, and captured the Westland championship.

Darrin Kent, a Westland resident and a junior at Wayne Memorial High School, finished third, with a 165.

"I really enjoyed the tournament," said Thompson, who finished fifth in 1986 and third in 1987.

"It's a lot of fun to play in a competition with a lot of good players, and it's even more fun to win. I don't think I played real well on Saturday because of the heat and the winds. But I am happy I won," he said.

The Romulus championship trophy went to Tom Singer, who fired an 80 on Saturday and an 82 on Sunday. Singer's performance was one stroke better than runner-up Paul Niedermeyer (163) and five strokes better than third-place finisher Terry Lemieux (167).

Other impressive scores during the tournament included a 165 and a second-place finish (Wayne) for Gary Clark, a 167 and a third-place finish (Canton) for Ken Eck and a 169 and a third-place finish for Craig Klimeczak, a student at Wayne Memorial.

Tournament Manager Bill Hawley blamed the low turnout on the excessive heat but said the 29th annual tournament was another success.

The field this year was filled with 60 players, 40 less than last year.

It was a true golfing drama

It was "do or die" time. They were running out of chances.

Mark Morton, Bob Wanniger and John Sample are not best friends. It's doubtful that you'll ever see them having lunch together or down at Tiger Stadium, catching a ballgame.

But, on this hot Sunday afternoon at Fellows Creek, they had the same thing on their minds. Morton didn't say it. Wanniger ignored the subject. And Sample went about his business.

There was no need to discuss it. No need to talk about it.

All three knew the enemy was Kevin Ryan. And, deep-down inside, they were hoping - and even praying - that the 27-year-old Inkster resident would crumble under the pressure.

Ryan started the final round of the 29th annual Associated Newspapers-City Golf Championship even with Mark Morton and two shots ahead of Wanniger. He was four ahead of Samples.

Following the front nine, however, Ryan led Morton by seven strokes. Sample had moved into second. Wanniger was third, five shots back.

At this point, there were no signs of a collapse from this confident performer. His stylish hat in place, he was quiet. But confident.

The players stood, ready to tee it up on the first hole of the back nine. There was little talk, and what was mentioned was the fear that Ryan could break this thing wide open.

"Right now, it's a one-man show," said Wanniger, following Ryan's 37 on the front nine, which included three birdies and three pars.

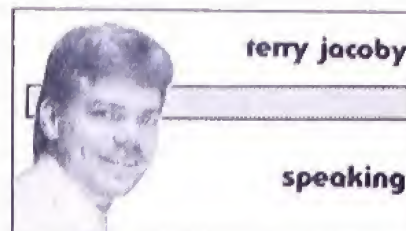

The players were chasing Ryan, who was as hot as the sun that beamed down on the golf course. As they were teeing off from this par-4 first hole, they were on top of a hill. But they were actually standing in a valley looking up toward the leader.

Ryan's tee-shot found the trees on the left. There was hope. Morton and Wanniger blasted drives down the right side.

Was this the beginning?

The famous back-nine choke?

Ryan picked up an iron and banged the ball back toward the middle of the fairway. His third shot found the green, and he finished with a bogey.

terry jacyby

speaking

Wanniger, who just missed a birdie, parred the hole. But he was the only one to take advantage of Ryan's tee-shot.

A missed opportunity for Morton and Sample.

On the 11th hole, Ryan bogeyed again. Two bogeys on the first two holes. He had just three on the front nine.

Morton and Wanniger came away with pars. Wanniger had made up two strokes on the first two holes and was just three strokes back.

The valley was shrinking, and the look up was diminishing.

The 12th hole was a long par-5. It turned out to be the turning point of the tournament.

Ryan blasted his tee-shot. His smooth stroke put the ball into orbit and 300-plus yards down the middle of the fairway.

"Not too long, but I guess it will play," said a joking Morton, who can also hit the ball a long way.

Ryan just missed a 12-foot eagle and "settled" for a birdie. Sample and Wanniger bogeyed, and Morton triple-bogeyed. Ryan's lead was back to five strokes, with just six holes remaining.

The lead was growing, and the chances for a collapse were becoming dimmer.

"Every time he falters a little bit, he comes back with a birdie," said Wanniger. "He's a real good player."

Ryan followed all three of his bogeys on the front nine with birdies.

On the 13th hole, Ryan hit a long tee-shot to the right and followed that with a blast over the green and onto the next tee-off area. He was faced with 40-foot trees and very little room to work with.

But his confidence was never shaken, as he took a sandwedge and hit the ball almost directly in the air. When it finally came down, it was on the green.

Ryan came away with an amazing par. He lost only one stroke, as Wanniger finished with a birdie.

Both Ryan and Morton hit their tee-shots on the green at the 14th hole. Both ended up with pars, as Wanniger double-bogeyed, and Sample bogeyed.

Realization sets in. There will be no collapse for Kevin Ryan.

The talk becomes more frequent. The players more loose.

"Can I get a driving lesson when we're done," Wanniger asks Ryan, who laughs at the question.

The defending champion, who finished first with a 148, talks very little out on the course. He knows what he must do. His concentration is focused totally on his game.

He isn't the type of player that collapses.

He is a rare player because he doesn't dwell on mistakes. He doesn't throw clubs or get angry with himself. He, like every golfer, makes bad shots.

But it's the rare golfer who can come back on the next shot and hit with confidence. And hit it well.

And that's why Kevin Ryan added another ANP golf trophy to his collection.

"I don't think I won because I played well. It was because I had less bogeys than the other guys," said Ryan, a graduate of Cherry Hill High School, who is currently self-employed and attends the Detroit College of Business.

"Anytime you win, it's nice. I really enjoy playing in this tournament because there are a lot of familiar faces, and they are people I have known for a while."

Ryan also knows the Fellows Creek Course well. He currently has the course record on the south-east (67) and the east-west (71).

And even though it's August, there is plenty of golf left for Ryan.

"I still have the U.S. Amateur Qualifier and the Michigan Amateur Qualifier to play," he said. "And there are a few other tournaments that I will play in before the year is over."

And it's a safe bet, that there are a few more trophies he will add to his shelf.

Youngsters are junior Olympians

More than 170 youngsters from the city of Wayne gathered at Franklin Junior High School July 22 to compete in the annual Junior Olympics.

The kids competed to the best of their ability and should be proud of their performances, according to Mike Shelton, director of the Wayne Fun Squad, the annual summer recreation program.

Winners in the city-wide tournament will advance to the regional Metro Youth Fitness meet this month on Belle Isle, in Detroit.

Brooks Murray, Scott Sico-vitch and Richard Buford won in the boys' agility run, while Susie Deavnee, Terry Marshall and Charmaine McClure won on the girls' side.

Leading the way in the boys' standing long jump were John Towler, Sean Collins and Paul Priebe. The girls were represented by Francine Zalewski and Kim Deavnee.

Willie Knight, Jake Smith and Donald Web won the boys' running long jump event, and Tina Aniol and Stacey Gabany won on the girls' side.

Kevin Ramon, Gary Dare, Kristian Ramon and Pam Kolongowski won the shuttle relay. The second-place team consisted of Rick Fairchild, Jeff Ramon, Sara Smith and Matara Jones, while the team of Tabatha Collies, Jimmy Shepard, Danny Fairchild and Karis Davis took third place. David Murdock, Joe Henzel and Darrel Knight won the softball throw for the boys, while the girls were represented by Karen Williams, Michelle Sadley and Amber Presson.

Winners in the sprints included Glen Dare and Zenobia Davis in the 75-yard dash, Jacob Ramon and Shatel Bell in the 60-yard dash and Eric Rajewski and Natasha Horne in the 50-yard dash.

Joshua Chadwick, Atari Brown and Nick Cicotte won the boys' chinning events, while Gina Powell was among the winners on the girls' side.

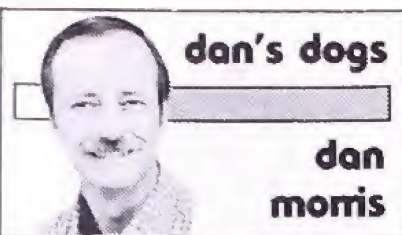

Relaxation is the key to dog obedience

Dog training would be much easier to teach and far more comfortable for the owner if those students new to the class routine would relax!

Easier said than done, you're thinking. But once the student relaxes, he or she is able to do another very important thing — listen!

Believe me, I am absolutely not making fun of anyone or forgetting when I, too, was first learning to train my own dog. The only difference between the students' position now and my situation years ago is that I had a superior officer threatening court martial if I didn't do the commands properly.

The thing that's difficult in training a dog is that listening to the commands and coordinating those signals and body movements with the instructions is not as easy as it looks. Suddenly, the most coordinated person becomes all thumbs. (And the dog picks up this lack of confidence on his owner's part and takes advantage of the situation.)

dan's dogs

dan morris

Remember first learning to drive an automobile or type or master a special culinary skill? There were mistakes after mistakes and frustration felt by anyone learning to do anything new or different. So, unless you've taken many dogs through training, working with your dog now, for the first time, is simply not easy.

Back to the primary training aid — relaxing.

If you can forget what your dog must be thinking and feeling and if you can forget what you are thinking or feeling, you'll be able to relax and, therefore, learn more quickly.

When you relax and let your dog make mistakes, you'll be able to hear the instructor guiding you into correct maneuvers to get your dog to perform. If you relax, your dog will actually think you know something he doesn't and may stop acting badly.

When you relax, you'll turn the training session into an enjoyable experience, rather than a grueling exercise dreaded by you and your dog.

You have all noticed that yelling at a youngster only causes the child to become more unruly. Yet, when a person talks softly and calmly to an unruly child, the child tends to stop, listen and react more positively. The same is true for a dog.

AM I A DIABETIC?

By Karl Merkley, M.D.

I'm thirsty! I'm losing weight. I'm feeling tired all the time. Sometimes my vision is blurred, and periodically, there's numbness in different parts of my body. Also, I have to get up at night and urinate more often than usual.

If all of these, or a combination of these statements fit your experience, you may be a diabetic.

Or, you might have no symptoms at all but have a family history of diabetes — father, mother, or both.

WHAT DO YOU DO?

Health-O-Rama and diabetes screening clinics frequently are the first-way stations to diagnose diabetes.

In the end, a visit to your doctor and appropriate blood testing — such as fasting blood sugar, and a glucose tolerance test will let you know the final results.

Blood insulin measurements and other blood evaluations will confirm the diagnosis and in most cases categorize the type of diabetes you might have.

One type, the insulin-dependent diabetic, is usually found in the younger patient population. As a rule, insulin dependent patients need to watch their blood sugar levels more closely. The non-insulin dependent diabetic responds more readily to diet and oral medications.

In either case, it's important that blood sugar values are kept in reasonable balance to prevent diabetic-related complications involving multiple organ systems of our bodies — particularly eyes, nervous system, vascular system, and skin.

Remember, diabetes does not always have symptoms. A periodic checkup with your physician, is the best way to find out if you are a diabetic.

LAST IN A FOUR-PART SERIES

Making wills made simpler by state laws

By JIM RINK
ANP Staff Writer

This is the last in a four-part series of consumers' law issues.

Where there's a will, there's a way — a way to keep your earthly possessions, assets and property from falling into the wrong hands.

If you die "intestate" (without a will), the state laws of descent and distribution determine who will receive your property. In Michigan, if you die without leaving a will, a court-appointed administrator will divide your assets in accordance to state law.

If you die and your closest surviving relative is your wife or husband and your children, the wife (husband) will receive one-third of your real property and the children two-thirds. If you have no wife or husband and no children, one-half of your real property goes to each parent or all to the surviving parent.

"There are a lot of reasons to make a will," said Michael Muma, a Plymouth attorney who specializes in estate planning. "There are a lot of opportunities for tax savings. Michigan has an inheritance tax. A will can structure an estate to avoid problematic taxes."

"A lot of people give property to stepchildren because there are different tax rates. You can also spread taxes out," he continued.

"If you don't have a will, the state has decided who it all goes to. For instance, if you don't have children, your assets may be split up between your wife and your parents."

Although there are several different types of wills, some are better than others, Muma said. It pays to know what's available in the will "marketplace." Although probate judges hesitate to question the validity of most wills, the entire legal process can become bogged down by an unorthodox or unusual will.

Following is a list of some common and not-so-common last testaments:

- Witnessed will. The most common type of will, the witnessed will can be handwritten or typewritten but must contain the signatures of two adults who have acted as witnesses to the will. The purpose of having witnesses is to help the probate court determine that the document presented is a legitimate one, reflecting the true wishes of the deceased.

Ideally, witnesses should be available to offer proof of the signing in probate court, and they may not be people who will benefit from the provisions of the will. A properly witnessed will written with the assistance of an attorney is the best assurance that an estate will be distributed properly and expeditiously to all beneficiaries.

(a) One-half to be distributed to my heirs as if I did not have a will, and one-half to be distributed to my spouse's heirs as if my spouse had died just after me without a will.

(b) All to be distributed to my heirs as if I did not have a will.

Article 3. Nominations of Personal Representative, Guardian, and Conservator

Personal representatives, guardians, and conservators have a great deal of responsibility. The role of a personal representative is to collect your assets, pay debts and taxes from those assets, and distribute the remainder to your heirs. A guardian is well-being of a child. A conservator is to manage your financial affairs and make payments from those assets. Also, before you select them, be sure they are qualified to serve.

3.1 PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE

I nominate _____ (insert name) of _____ (insert address) to serve as personal representative.

If my first choice does not serve, I nominate _____ (insert name of person) of _____ (insert address) to serve as personal representative.

3.2 GUARDIAN AND CONSERVATOR

Your spouse may die before you. I name a person as guardian of the _____ (insert name of person) of _____ (insert address) as guardian and _____ (insert name of person) of _____ (insert address) as conservator.

If my first choice cannot serve, I nominate _____ (insert name of person) of _____ (insert address) as guardian and _____ (insert name of person) of _____ (insert address) as conservator.

3.3 BOND

My personal representative or a conservator I have named shall give a bond. Bond premiums would be paid by me.

The Michigan Statutory Will

STATE REPRESENTATIVE
PERRY BULLARD
SPONSOR OF THE MICHIGAN STATUTORY WILL ACT

State lawmakers introduced The Michigan Statutory Will (above) in 1986 as a way to make creating a will as simple as filling out a form. Books such as this one are available at the offices of most state legislators.

- Holographic will. Less common, the holographic will is one written, dated and signed in one's own handwriting. Less easy to authenticate, the holographic will can present problems in probate court. No witnesses can come forward to establish that the document is in fact someone's will. The holographic will can be written in solitude, under circumstances of stress which may adversely affect the final form of it.

However, under Michigan law, a holographic will is recognized by the courts as a legal will and the provisions of it as an accurate representation of the decedent's last wishes.

- Nuncupative will. A nuncupative will is an oral declaration under critical circumstances, before one or more witnesses, of the final disposition of an estate. Again, a nuncupative will is less desirable because of the possible stresses involved.

- Mutual or reciprocal will. Mutual or reciprocal wills are separate documents drafted by a married couple which rely on each other's terms. One drawback to a mutual will is when husband and wife die simultaneously. In this case, it is advisable to insert a "presumption of survivorship" clause, which enables the probate court to carry out the wife's intentions by presuming that she survived her husband.

- Statutory will. A statutory will is a recent phenomenon. Much like a simplified tax form, the statutory will comes already written, with appropriate blank spaces to be filled in by the preparer. One drawback to the statutory will is that once completed, the contents of the original form cannot be amended.

A new form must be prepared and the old form destroyed.

Statutory wills can be obtained in the offices of most state lawmakers.

Assuming one chooses to draft a witnessed will, the first step is to contact a suitable attorney and provide him or her with the following information and documentation:

- A complete list of all assets, including bank accounts, stocks, bonds, business ownership and money owed to you, as well as personal belongings such as jewelry, furs, art objects, etc;
- An itemization of all your real estate, together with the value and location of it, including property owned jointly;
- A list of your obligations, including mortgages, leases and debts;
- Any inheritances you expect to receive before your death;

- A statement of your approximate income and general standard of living for the past several years;

- Insurance of all kinds, including numbers and face amounts of the policies, their premiums and any outstanding loans against them; and

- Family information, such as the ages and the state of health of members, adopted children, marital problems, family feuds and black sheep, if any.

Most wills include the designation of executor. The executor can be any U.S. citizen 21 or older who is mentally competent and not convicted of a felony.

More likely than not, an executor should be someone who is trustworthy, living in fairly close proximity to the estate in question.

Commonly, wives, husbands or close relatives and friends are appointed as executors.

The executor executes the purposes of the will, making sure everybody receives what he is supposed to get. The executor (or court-appointed administrator if you die intestate) takes over all property and assets, makes a detailed inventory, settles debts, pays funeral expenses, income taxes and specific bequests and legacies to beneficiaries.

Executors and administrators are entitled to commissions for managing the estate. This amount is set by statute in almost all states. The executor may also, with court approval, retain legal and professional assistance and charge the cost against the estate.

And the taxes?

As the saying goes, nothing is certain except death and taxes. Without question, when someone dies, his estate will be taxed. To avoid paying more than an equitable amount, it pays to follow a few tax tips. Here are some of the tax-saving and expense-saving devices your lawyer may recommend:

- The marital deduction. The marital deduction allows you to leave up to half of your estate to your spouse, outright or in a trust, tax free;

- Trusts. Use of one or another type of trust, either testamentary or inter-vivos, enables you to postpone final distribution by as much as an entire generation, skipping, in effect, a second estate tax bite on the property you leave at your death;

- Life insurance. Though life insurance is sometimes subject to federal estate taxes, you may instruct that it be paid directly to the beneficiary, minimizing administrative costs;

- Joint ownership of property. Jointly held property between husband and wife or parent and child may also materially reduce the administrative costs of an estate; and

- Gifts or transfer of property during your lifetime. Taxes on these may be lower than if they were made after death, because gift tax rates are lower than estate tax rates.

One last bit of information regarding wills — according to "You and the Law," by The Reader's Digest Association (revised 1973), "a murderer may not inherit from his victim, will or no will." However, the law also provides that a person must be convicted of murder before becoming disinherited.

So, if you plan very carefully...

Landlord-tenant relationship must be legally sound

Lawyer gives lease advice

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Western Wayne County is certainly a hot spot for apartment complexes. Each complex has many of the amenities needed in the 1980s lifestyles — microwave, air conditioning, swimming pool...

Landlords and leases.

The last two apartment-complex features are those to watch most carefully, area lawyers suggest.

The simple advice given by most attorneys is "read the lease." That is the best way for someone renting a house, apartment or a place of business to avoid problems with a landlord, problems which may be resolved only in the courtroom.

"There are a number of laws that protect the renters, including the Truth in Renting Act and the Security Deposit Act, which people should be aware of," said Nevin Rose, a Westland-based attorney.

"Always carefully read something you are going to put your signature on and know exactly what you're getting into."

Rose believes a lease is something that protects the tenant — not the landlord. The document contains rights that landlords don't want to give renters.

"I would think that landlords would favor a month-to-month lease as opposed to a long-term agreement," he said. "It's a lot harder to prove in court that a tenant is causing trouble than it is to just terminate his lease."

The landlord has a list of rules and regulations that must be followed in a contract with the tenant. The list includes:

- The landlord must deposit the security deposit in a bank or other regulated financial institution;
- The landlord must notify the tenant, in writing, within 14 days after the tenant takes possession of the name and address where the landlord will receive any communications, the name of the financial institution where the security is deposited. In addition, the law requires the tenant to furnish the landlord with a forwarding address within four days after giving up occupancy;
- The landlord must furnish the tenant, at the commencement of the tenancy, with two blank copies of an inventory checklist for all items contained in the rental unit

(paint, plumbing, electrical fixtures, etc.). The list must be completed and one copy returned by the tenant within seven days;

- The landlord must advise the tenant of his or her right to see the termination inventory check list of the last tenant; and

- The landlord must mail to the tenant, within 30 days after termination, a list and amount of claimed damage, along with a notice that the tenant must raise any objections, in writing, within seven days.

Several other legal requirements must also be understood by a tenant before the landlord-tenant relationship begins, Rose said. One such requirement is the tenant's responsibility to pay monthly rental payments until the lease expires.

"There must be a clause in the lease that states if (the lease needs to be broken), the landlord can get you out of the lease," Rose said. "The reality is they probably won't chase you, because when they finally track you down and get done paying their attorneys and court costs, they won't be left with very much."

Another important understanding for the tenant, Rose said, is the truth about evictions. Landlords cannot evict tenants. A court order can.

"When a renter doesn't pay rent, it is a clean-cut case," Rose said. "But when you start getting into the reasons why, then it gets sticky. The landlord can't just throw a guy out. He has to give a 30-day notice that he is terminating the lease. If the tenant doesn't vacate, he then must start court procedures."

Desserts

Remove the peel from the oranges with a sharp knife in 2-inch strips about 1/2 inch wide. Combine the sugar and water in a heavy-bottomed saucepan. Stir to dissolve the sugar. Bring to a boil. Add the strips of orange peel and swirl the pan a little to keep them from clumping together. Simmer gently for 10 minutes. Remove from the heat and let the peels cool in the syrup.

Cut the oranges in half. Wash the strawberries. Set one pint aside. Cut the tops off the other pint and cut the berries into quarters vertically. For smaller berries, cut in half or leave whole so pieces are 1 1/2 inches at widest. Whip 1 1/2 cups of the cream to soft peaks and fold it into the cut strawberries.

Center one sponge layer on a cake plate. Squeeze the juice of one orange over it. Spread the strawberry cream on the layer, pushing the strawberries back 1/2 inch or so from the edges. Smooth the surface with a rubber scraper or icing spatula. Add the second sponge layer and press it gently into the cream. Spread the cream that has oozed out between the layers, plus any cream left in the bowl, to cover the sides of the cake. Crush the almonds with a rolling pin, then press them onto the sides of the cake with your open palm. Squeeze the juice of the second orange over the top sponge layer. Put the tops off the remaining pint of strawberries and cut the berries in half vertically. Arrange the berries in two concentric circles in the center of the cake. The tips of the strawberries should point toward the center and the circles should overlap slightly.

Bring the jelly and sugar to a boil in a heavy-bottomed saucepan. Lower the heat and simmer, stirring occasionally to help dissolve the lumps. The mixture will be cloudy at first. When the lumps are gone, let the mixture simmer until it turns glossy. Skim any foam off the top. Strain through a fine sieve and set aside to cool until warm. Brush a thin layer of glaze over strawberries.

Whip the remaining cream to soft peaks. Put it in a pastry bag with a number 9 plain tip. Make a tight zigzag border of cream filling the area between the strawberries and the edge of the cake. Cut the pieces of candied peel to a uniform length. Place one piece in the crease between the zig and zag of each mound of cream, with the points toward the center of the cake. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

I've paid the price for sharing

My genius sister has done it again.

I've written about this flower of our family tree before and sung her praises for many of the culinary creations she has invented, remembered or accidentally stumbled upon but this time, I really owe her one.

I had been searching for a very difficult and complicated recipe for a summertime cake favorite for nearly a year when low and behold, my sister mentioned in passing conversation that she was actually making the dessert for company last week. Eureka, I have found it...except of course, she did elicit a price for the favor of providing me with the recipe. We won't discuss what she demanded, but she has never gotten over the time I accidentally chipped her front tooth with a pop bottle when she was 13. I don't understand her vindictiveness. After all, the dentist fixed her up better than new in only three or four visits, so what's to complain about or take revenge for?

Some people. At any rate, I got the recipe and am going to share it, and you don't have to babysit with my grandchildren or buy me lunch the way some people (like me) were forced to in order to get it. It's complicated but really delicious on these hot days of summer.

Strawberry-orange cake

CAKE

- 4 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 2/3 cup cake flour
- 1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
- 4 large egg yolks
- 4 large whole eggs

Preheat oven to 300 degrees.

Cut a circle of parchment to fit the bottom of a 9-inch cake pan. Butter the bottom and sides of the pan and line with parchment, then flour the sides. Be sure parchment lies flat.

Melt the butter and keep it warm. Sift together the flour and 2 tablespoons of the sugar. Toss them a little with hands to make sure they are thoroughly mixed. Set aside.

Bring some water to a boil in a large saucepan or the bottom of a double boiler. In a large stainless steel bowl, stir together the egg yolks, whole eggs, and the rest of the sugar. Whisk continuously over the boiling water just until hot (not long enough to cook the eggs). Transfer to the bowl of an electric mixer and whip at high speed until double in volume. The batter will be pale and thick. Beat at medium high speed a few minutes more, until the batter forms a ribbon and holds a deep crease.

Sprinkle the flour mixture over the batter and gently but briskly fold it in. Transfer one quarter of the batter to a smaller bowl. Stir the melted butter and fold it in. Fold this mixture back into the rest of the batter, working quickly so that the butter does not thicken. Pour immediately into prepared pan. Bake for about one hour and 10 minutes, until the center springs back when touched lightly. Let cool in pan for 10 minutes, then transfer to cake rack to cool completely.

FILLING

- 2 juice oranges
- 3/4 cup water
- 2 pints large strawberries
- 3 cups whipping cream
- 1/2 cup sliced almonds, toasted
- 1 cup currant jelly
- 1/4 cup sugar

Trim the top and bottom of the sponge cake and split it into two equal layers. Set aside.

Variety is spice of life in lunches

Kids share secrets of brown bags

By KIM KOESTER
ANP Special Writer

Terri Wise, 5, of Westland, loves orange juice in her lunch. Alex Rossetto, 10, of Westland, admits that a "good lunch" includes carrots.

Rachel Rozmus, 4, of Westland, recently brought a peanut butter-and-jelly sandwich, applesauce, grapes and water for lunch, although she would prefer rice.

And the list of personal preferences of the lunch-time variety could continue almost endlessly.

Not all children today need to take a lunch. But with the September school bell echoing in the distance, those that do "brown bag it" need mothers and fathers capable of providing food that is both healthy and delicious.

The three children named above are participating in the summer program at the YMCA of Wayne-Westland. Last week, they offered parents a few hints and secrets to help perfect the skill of "brown bagging it." The three have become veterans at the lunchroom table and are the envy of their peers.

■ Terri's mom, Michele Wise, said she usually likes to give her daughter a lunchmeat sandwich, potato chips or Doritos, a small applesauce cup, cookies or a granola bar for dessert and orange juice to drink.

"She always, pretty much, gets a healthy lunch," Wise said, "especially since Terri is not keen on eating breakfast. I try to give her all the food groups for lunch."

Wise varies the lunches, providing a barbecued chicken sandwich - "which she likes a lot" - one day and roast beef or "whatever meat is left over from dinner" the next. Since Wise packs a lunch for her husband, too, both father and daughter often receive similar lunch packages.

■ Alex's lunch last week consisted of a peanut butter-and-jelly sandwich, carrot sticks and Kool-Aide.

"I don't care about the drink," he said, "but I like a salami sandwich for lunch, with tomato, lettuce and mustard."

Like most kids, Alex will trade his lunch. Why?

"Well, it depends if I have something I don't like," he said, "I'm not picky, but I have to trade with my brother."

Alex's mom, Pam Rossetto, explained that "it's not that hard to get them to eat healthy lunches, mainly because I don't give (junk foods) to them. I don't bring Twinkies and that stuff into the house, so they learn to eat more healthy foods."

Rossetto will often provide bologna, nuts and popcorn for lunch - or maybe carrot sticks and cucumbers.

Potato chips and pretzels are thrown in on occasion, she admitted.

■ Rachael's mom, Susan Rozmus, said, when the weather is warm, her daughter receives peanut butter-and-jelly sandwiches in her lunch because of the spoiling problem. She also likes to give fruit, "not too many sweets" and, perhaps, a second fruit, such as applesauce.

With the warm weather, she also likes to give her daughter ice water.

"It's kind of limited," she said. "As a nurse, I really do try to limit their sweets," Rozmus said, "although Rachael does get a treat after dinner."

In her lunches, Terri is most fond of orange juice. However, lunch meat, grilled-cheese sandwiches and rice are welcomed, as well.

Terri says "ick" to the junk food her friends bring for lunch and would trade Twinkies for applesauce in a minute.

Nevertheless, all three children said variety is the necessary spice of any lunch. The recipes that follow could be just the needed, welcomed relief to the old-standby - the peanut butter-and-jelly sandwich.

2 to 3 tablespoons thousand island salad dressing or mayonnaise
Lettuce leaves
2 cans (3 2/3 ounces each) smoked salmon, drained
4 slices caraway cheese
4 slices boiled ham
4 slices provolone cheese
8 slices tomato
Thin onion slices
Dill pickle slices
2 cans (3 3/4 ounces each) sardines, drained, if desired
Endive leaves

Cut loaves horizontally in half. Spread cut sides with butter and salad dressing. Layer lettuce, salmon, caraway cheese, ham, provolone cheese, tomato, onion and pickle slices and sardines on bottom halves of loaves.

Place endive on sardines and top with remaining halves of loaves. Secure with wooden picks.

Sweet cereal puffs

3 egg whites
2/3 cups sugar
4 cups Total or Wheaties cereal

Heat oven to 325 degrees. In large mixing bowl, beat egg whites until foamy. Beat in sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time. Continue beating until very stiff and glossy. Fold in cereal.

Drop mixture by teaspoonfuls, 2 inches apart, onto lightly oiled baking sheet. Bake 14 to 16 minutes. Makes 4 dozen cookies, 20 calories each.

Butter sticks

1/3 cup butter
2 cups Bisquick baking mix
1/2 cup cold water

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Melt butter in a 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. Stir Bisquick and water in a bowl with a fork, to make a soft dough. Gently smooth dough into a ball on floured, cloth-covered board. Knead 5 times, and roll dough into a rectangle, 10-by-6 inches, with a lightly floured, stockinette-covered rolling pin. Cut lengthwise in half. Cut each half crosswise into 12 equal strips, 3 inches long and about 3/4 inches wide.

Dip each strip into the melted butter, making sure each side is coated. Arrange in pan and bake for 12 to 15 minutes.

Peanut-bacon-pickle sandwich

4 slices bacon, crisply fried and crumbled
1 tablespoon sweet-pickle relish
6 slices bread or toast, buttered
1/3 cup peanut butter

For each sandwich, sprinkle bacon and pickle relish on 1 slice of bread. Spread peanut butter on second slice. Put slices together. Makes three sandwiches.

Fruit-slice cookies

1 cup butter, softened
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
3 cups flour (non-rising)
1 teaspoon salt
Yellow, green and red food color
1 1/2 teaspoons each: grated lemon, lime and orange peel
Yellow-, green- and orange-colored sugar

Mix thoroughly: butter, granulated sugar, eggs and vanilla. Blend in flour and salt. Divide dough into four parts.

To one part, add a few drops of yellow food color and the lemon peel. To a second part, add a few drops of green food color and the lime peel. To a third part, add a few drops each red and yellow food color and the orange peel. Leave the remaining part of the dough plain. Work in color and peel with hands. Cover dough and chill 1 hour.

Shape each color dough into a roll 2 inches in diameter and 4 inches in length. Divide plain dough into three parts. Roll each part into a rectangle, 6-by-4 inches.

Wrap one rectangle around each roll of colored dough. Press firmly together. Roll in matching colored sugar. Wrap and chill for 6 hours.

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Cut each roll into 1/8-inch slices. Place on ungreased baking sheet and cut each slice in half. Bake 6 to 8 minutes. Immediately remove from baking sheet. Makes about 10-dozen cookies.

Fig bars

2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups finely cut figs
1 cup chopped nuts

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 9-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. Beat eggs until foamy. Beat in sugar and vanilla.

Blend in flour, baking powder and salt. Stir in figs and nuts. Spread batter in pan. Bake 25 to 30 minutes. Cool. Cut into bars, 2 inches by 1 1/2 inches. Makes about 2-dozen cookies.

Oatsies

2 cups oats
1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
1/4 cup dark corn syrup
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 package (6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces, melted
1/4 cup chopped nuts

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Grease baking pan, 9-by-9-by-2 inches. In a medium bowl, mix oats and brown sugar. Stir together butter, syrup, salt and vanilla. Mix thoroughly into oat mixture. Press dough evenly into the bottom of the pan. Bake 8 to 10 minutes or until top bubbles. Cool. Spread chocolate on top. Sprinkle nuts on chocolate. Chill 1 hour. Cut into bars, about 2 inches by 1 1/2 inches. Makes 32 cookies.
